

Doubts in view of the entry into force on 6 December of the obligation to show the green certificate to get on public transport. Between middle and high schools, students not yet vaccinated are over one million. The green pass will be required on the bus, but not to enter the school. How will the boys do it? This is one of the critical issues that emerged today during today's Conference of Regions.

With regard to the obligation of green certification for local public transport, the question of unvaccinated students has been raised. From next 6 December to get on public transport of local transport it will be necessary to show the green pass obtainable through vaccination, recovery from Covid or negative swab.

Children still without a Covid vaccine can continue to enter school without a green pass, but they may have difficulties in reaching their schools as they cannot get on public transport when the green certificate is required. The transport hub is crucial. Between middle and high schools there are over a million students not yet vaccinated.

Without the vaccine, children and their families would require a monthly cost of between 90 and 100 euros for tampons at the controlled price of 8 euros. Green pass on the bus but not at school: the crux of unvaccinated students

The former Minister of Education

Lucia Azzolina also spoke on the issue today. "It is not children and adolescents who have to pay the consequences of the fact that some adults do not want to vaccinate. Both in terms of vaccination and in terms of the obligation to show the green pass on public transport," said the 'exponent M5s. The problem of the green pass on public transport for unvaccinated students was also raised in recent days by the National School Network in attendance, which had spoken of "serious violation of the constitutional principle of the right to education", because the measure would deprive students not vaccinated with the right to go to school. In addition,

"the extension of the certification to students to reach school would discriminate against large families and the less well-off, which more frequently are the same ones in which cases of abandonment or prolonged absences occur. A very heavy burden is imposed, not only economic, at the expense of parents, mothers in particular ", had denounced the Net.

Among the doubts always raised on the subject of transport and green passes, there is also that relating to the figures who will actually be able to raise any penalties in the event that Tpl companies are involved.

In Milan, the mayor Giuseppe Sala said that under the Madonnina the controls of the "super green pass" on public transport will be random "because more cannot be done" and "there will be a mixed activity of ATM staff, public force and vigilant ". T he local police should also take the field in Rome, with checks at bus stops or terminus via an app on the smartphones supplied, but on-board blitzes are also not excluded. Green light in Lombardy, from Monday 16 August, to a channel dedicated to university students on the regional portal for booking the anti-Covid vaccine. In fact, the Region announces "priority agendas" to vaccinate all students of Lombard universities. This was announced by the regional councilor for Education and University Fabrizio Sala: "

Access to reservations

- he explains - will also be guaranteed to students from other regions, and to international students not in possession of a health card but with a tax code or other identification code". "To encourage greater diffusion of vaccination - continues Sala - foreign and off-site students can go to the nearest and most convenient center.

The Region intends to ensure maximum availability for the administration of the anti-Covid vaccine to students but also to school staff, for a safe start of academic activity ".Direct access to hubs for teachers and non-teachersIn fact, as required by the latest decree, the Green Pass will always be required to access the university.

For this reason, the initiative will also involve postdocs, doctoral students and contract professors (by reservation): according to government regulations, in addition, teaching and non-teaching staff will be able to access the vaccination centers without booking, with "direct access" to the hubs. .The vaccination campaign also in universities

And that's not all: "We are evaluating - concludes Councilor Sala - the possibility of organizing targeted initiatives to increase adherence to vaccination at university offices at the end of August, before the start of the new academic year". We remind all university staff and university students that a Green Pass is required to practice their profession or attend classes and activities. Random checks have already been announced.

After more than a year and a half of distance learning, from next week the first real return to school in the presence since the Covid-19 pandemic began. To ensure the safety of all educational activities, this school year will see the introduction of various health provisions, including the use of the green pass to access the buildings, the obligation to bring masks in the classrooms and staggering for entry and exit from schools or for the use of canteens.

What are the rules for those who cannot receive the vaccine for health reasons?

According to ministerial provisions, only people in particular health conditions are exempt from the green pass. In this case, it will be necessary to present a special certification, issued by the health authorities, proving the exclusion from the vaccination campaign.

These certifications can be issued by regional health services or by treating doctors and may be in paper or digital format. For this category there is no obligation to green pass, in any situation. Is the green pass mandatory for female students as well?

According to the Ministry of Education, the green pass will be mandatory for "all school staff of the national education and university system, as well as university students" who attend lessons in person.

Therefore, students of elementary, middle and high schools are excluded. In addition, the certification will also be mandatory for pupils of the "institutions of higher education in music and dance, as well as for the activities of other higher education institutions connected to the university" How will the green pass checks at school work? The Ministry of Education is working on the creation of a special verification app to standardize the control in all educational institutions

. While waiting for this to be ready, the first checks will be carried out through the app developed by Sogei, the IT company of the Ministry of Economy and Finance, Verification19, already in use throughout the country. What happens to those who do not submit the certification? For teachers and school staff, failure to possess the green pass will be considered as an unjustified absence and, starting from the fifth day of absence, the employment relationship will be suspended without pay or other compensation.

Female students, on the other hand, will not be admitted to universities. What are the other health measures? School staff, teachers and students will need to check the temperature at home before going to school or university.

Anyone with a temperature above 37.5 degrees will have to stay at home and will be able to participate in remote lessons. Everyone in the classroom must always wear a mask, even those who have already received the vaccine. Those involved in assisting students with disabilities, in addition to the mask, will have to wear additional protective tools such as gloves or visors.

According to the latest ministerial provisions, the desks must be spaced, but there is no longer the rule of the meter distance, in any case already little followed due to the inefficient conditions of the school building, which do not always guarantee large enough classrooms. All the sanitary provisions foreseen in the classrooms also apply to the rooms dedicated to teaching staff, where distance must be guaranteed and it will be mandatory to wear a mask. Schools and universities will have to equip themselves with filters or other ventilation systems for closed environments. Alternatively, a period of five minutes must be guaranteed at the end of each hour to circulate the air with the windows open. The advice of the health authorities is to always leave at least one window always open.
